Yes, happy to do that. Chan, let me know if you would like to follow up. We would want to brief Bernard

FYI, Ted is also at CERA and asked me yesterday about meeting with RWD. I have not asked Mark or Bob and I actually had lunch with Ted yesterday in DC.

I am sure it would be very easy for Bob to help arrange a meeting if that would be useful.

Chan, Dave

Thanks for copying me in on this. Bob and Paul are also deeply involved in the CLC and we are likely to be announcing some funding of CLC – potentially subject to some conditions about inclusion of carbon offsets – in the near future.

Bob can also give some more background on Ted Halstead.

Best regards

Dominic

Hi Chan

The Climate Leadership Council (CLC) announced its foundation in June 2017 via an advertisement in the Wall Street Journal. It is an international research and advocacy organisation whose mission is to mobilise global leaders around equitable climate solutions. It develops and promotes new policy frameworks based on carbon dividends.

BP was one of the founding corporate members – along with Exxon, Conoco, AECOM, Allianz, AT&T, Exelon, First Solar, GM, Johnson & Johnson, MetLife and P&G.

Membership has now risen to 18 corporate members, including Shell and Total.

www.clcouncil.org

The attached short document (6 pages) provides an overview of the CLC and its plan – and a brief bio of Ted Halstead.

In summary the CLC are advocating for 4 things;

1. A gradually rising fee on carbon dioxide emissions
2. The proceeds from this carbon fee should be returned to the American people on an equal and quarterly basis as a carbon dividend
3. Adjustments for the carbon content of both imports and exports would protect American competitiveness and disadvantage nations without a carbon price, encouraging them to adopt carbon pricing of their own.
4. The elimination of regulations that are no longer necessary with carbon fee

Note that James Baker is heavily involved in the CLC – and he has a long history with BP and chaired the Baker Panel post Texas City.

Many thanks

Dave

Hi Dave,

Bernard is attending the Bloomberg New Energy Finance summit in NY at the end of March. Ted Halstead (Chairman and CEO of the Climate Leadership Council) is attending. Bernard wanted to verify if BP is a member of this council – if we are, he will try to get a meeting with him while there.

Can you confirm and we will connect with their office?

Thanks,

Kind regards,

Chan
