Subject: Meeting this week?

Dear David and Bob,

The Partnership For Responsible Growth is organizing a series of meetings (to be co-sponsored by National Wildlife Federation and hosted by the Pew Trusts) for virtually all of the major environmental advocacy organizations to get more familiar with policy details of potential federal carbon pricing legislation and to reach out to non-environmental constituencies and the business community to hear their views. Attached is a description of the program.

I'm very eager to get your advice about whether and how it would be productive to include some of the oil majors in this process, at least to help structure one of the listening sessions and make it a useful presentation/dialogue about what the tech sector is thinking about all this.

I'm free much of this week and next. Is there a time we can get together for coffee?

Best,

George
